

What is Practice Based Coaching?

Practice Based Coaching supports home visitors with specific goals and practices targeted around school readiness and the Parents as Teachers Curriculum to support parents and caregivers with their child's education and development.

What does Practice Based Coaching look like?

EHS Coaches partner with home visiting staff to set professional development goals and action plans around practices they share with families. Some ways coaches support a home visitor are through:

- Home Visit Observations
- Supporting Socializations

Home Visit Observations

Your home visitor may ask your permission to bring along their coach to a home visit for an observation. This observation is to support the home visitor with their goal's action plan and with the delivery of the Parents as Teachers Curriculum. If the family agrees to have the coach join in on a home visit the family will sign a consent form to allow in-home observation.

Early Head Start Home Visits

Your home visitor understands how important you are as your child's first and most important teacher. Home visits are a time that is intended for you and your child to interact with each other and have fun. You will partner with your home visitor to develop family goals, child development goals, and activities.
